Travel Information

By train

If you come to Zaragoza by train or bus you will reach the Zaragoza Delicias Intermodal station, which is located within the city. The station is well-communicated with both the different neighborhoods and the airport.

Barcelona and Madrid provide a good connection through the high-speed train (AVE). The Barcelona train station is called Barcelona-Sants and the Madrid train station is called Madrid-Atocha. If you arrive by plane to Madrid or Barcelona you need to arrange transportation from the airport to the train station:

- Barcelona: From the airport train station to the Sants train station. Detailed information on the available options can be found on this website: https://barcelona-bcn-airport.com/transportation/airport-transfer-to-sants-train-station/

- Madrid: From the T4 airport to the Atocha train station. Detailed information on the available options can be found on this website: https://madrid-international-airport.com/transportation/airport-to-atocha-train-station/
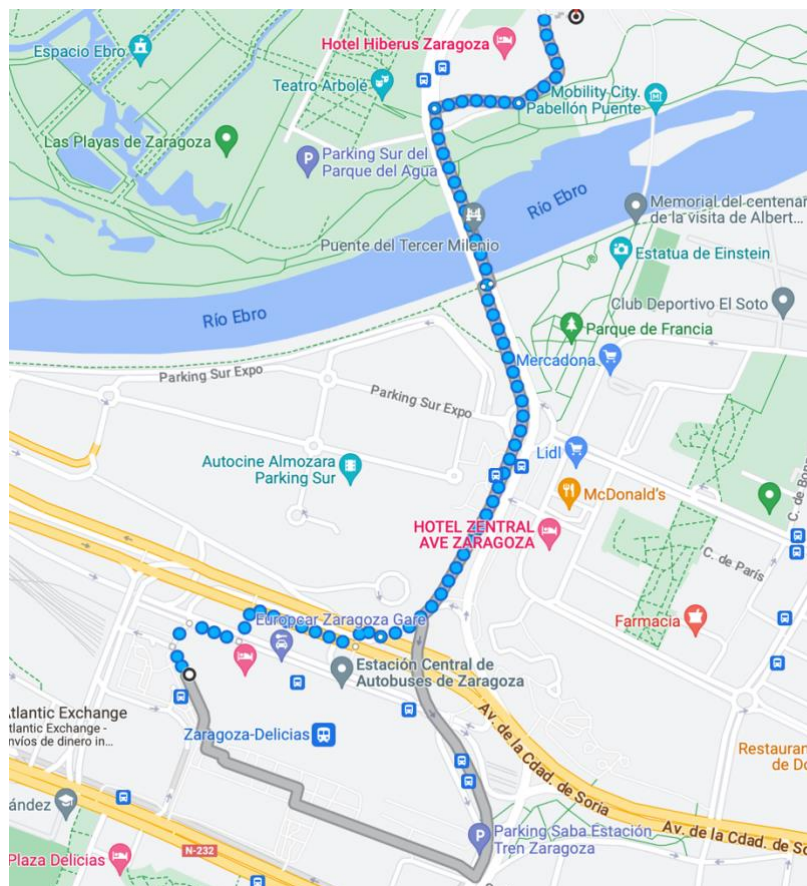

The Zaragoza Delicias Intermodal Station houses a hotel, a business center, shopping centers, and a variety of services for travelers. Zaragoza belongs to the AVE Cities Network.

- City buses, lines: 51, Ci1, Ci2, 21, 25, 27 and 42: https://zaragoza.avanzagrupo.com
- Taxis: https://www.zaragoza.es/ciudad/viapublica/movilidad/taxi/ (there is a taxi rank at the exit of the station)
- Car rental: https://www.zaragoza.es/sede/portal/turismo/post/alquiler-de-coches

Aside from the taxi service, you have two options to arrive to the conference venue:
- Either take bus line Ci1 (10 minutes, Google Maps route here), or
- Walk (20 minutes, Google Maps route here)

By car

Zaragoza is located at an interesting crossroads, meaning that you can access it via the motorways from Madrid, Huesca, Teruel, and Valencia, or the national highways from Barcelona, Bilbao, and Pamplona.

Once you reach the outskirts, the Z-40 and Z-30 ring roads allow easy access to the city's various neighborhoods. The conference venue is located in the Expo area, which is situated within the Actur neighborhood.

Entering Zaragoza from Europe is aided by the Somport tunnel which links the city with France and provides direct access into the heart of the country.
